

El Paso Border Crossing by jonathan mcintosh (2009) <https://www.flickr.com/photos/68979377@N00/3975933384/>
Attribution (<http://creativecommons.org/licenses/by/2.0/>)
Photo Attribution by PhotosForClass.com

IMMIGRATION

Few current topics are more controversial or more immediately moral than immigration, which shapes not just the U.S. of today but who the American people is over the next generation or more. It is also of immediate implication for UNC Charlotte, which hosts over 2,000 international students.

Speakers

Jan. 24 - Mariana Ortega (Penn State) is author of In-Between: Latina Feminist Phenomenology, Multiplicity, and the Self (2016). (Atkins Library Halton Reading Room, 2:30-4:00. Including photo exhibit by Verónica Cárdenas and reception)

Feb 7 - Natalie Cisneros (Seattle Univ.) is completing a monograph on immigration using the work of Gloria Anzaldúa as a theoretical lens (Cone 111, 2:30-4:00)

Feb 12 - Rebecca Hester (Virginia Tech) works on issues of ethics and cultural competency (Cone 210, 2:30-4:00pm)

March 11 - Martha Escobar (CSU Northridge) is author of Captivity Beyond Prisons: Criminalization Experiences of Latina (Im)migrants (2016) (Cone 210, 2:30-4:00)

Check the Center Website or Facebook Page for dates and updates. All events are free and open to the public.

Cosponsored by the Chancellor's Diversity Challenge Fund